Many Honest and High-Souled Foreigners.

There are many such, says the editor of the Louisville Journal, who fully indorse the American movement. No doubt all who will vote right are honest and high-souled. One of them addressed an American meeting at Frankfort the other day. Wasn't that a beautiful spectacle? Can Americans rule America without the concert and advice of foreigners? Could nobody but an Irishman be found to address the brethren? And could he, born in Ireland, appreciate the institutions of this country sufficiently to teach and exert the sons of the soil?

This man O'Sullivan, referred to the motto "Ireland for the Irish." It was what he had strayed for at home, and he would not deny the truth of the doctrine, "America for Americans."

Well, the result of his struggles for Ireland upon his principle of "Ireland for the Irish," shows what sort of a counsellor he is. If the "American" party have as much wisdom as the Irish party to which the orator belonged, they will do wonders, no doubt. The intense nationality of Ireland has gained her nothing but a harvest of misfortunes. It has aggravated her multiplied wrongs, and relieved none of them; and the intense nationality of England has been fed by a like intensity on the other side. Oppression and vain resentment has been the story of ages. What has created and multiplied the wrongs of Ireland? The feuds of race and religion. The former makes England the oppressor of Ireland, and the latter divides and weakens Irishmen, and makes all their efforts fruitless.

And this Irishman would have these same feuds imported into this country! The fact that some foreigners become Know-Nothings only proves that they, in common with some natives, never will appreciate American institutions. Now we agree, that if an Irishman intends to remain an Irishman, and retain the politics and prejudices of his old country, he ought not to vote here. We insist that America is for Americans, and if an Irishman cannot become an American, America is not for him; and we don't think him fit to teach and instruct Americans on politics. If a man is not an American, but an Irishman, let him not vote or hold office. We have plenty of Democrats who were born in other countries; but they are Americans, and nothing else.

Our doctrine, and the doctrine of our fathers, is that the place of a man's allegiance is a matter of choice, at his own discretion. If Mr. O'Sullivan is still an Irishman, and not an American, he is right not to vote, make political speeches, or offer for office. If he should, no American, wherever he may have been born, ought to vote for him.

This high-souled Irishman virtually admits that he is not an American. Very well; then high-souled though he may be, there is no controversy as to him. He ought not to vote or hold office, and all who occupy the same position are in the same category. They ought not to vote for any body, and nobody should vote for them. The citizen by adoption need not forget his Fatherland, nor those he has left behind him; that would not be human; America is his home and his country, otherwise he has misplaced his allegiance.

America is for Americans. That is a true doctrine; but we beg leave to judge ourselves, when we vote, as to who are Americans. Some born in other countries, although they have sworn allegiance to the United States, are not Americans, and never will be; some born here never will be in character and sentiment, and ought not to be in fact. Such falls as block up the polls, carry elections by club-law, destroy ballot-boxes, or strive to get up feuds of race or religion, are not fit to be Americans.

Coming Events.

We give our readers, this morning, two extracts from the New York Tribune, the great organ of the Republican party. One refers to the organization of the House at the ensuing session of Congress. We have had the cautions and warnings of the Know-Nothing organ in this city, and the reader can compare them with the suggestions and overtures of the Tribune. Prentice counsels that the Know-Nothings shall not divide upon the slavery question, but the party itself is divided.

The editor of the Tribune will consent to this. The brethren can unite on the general opposition to Pierce, Douglas & Co. Prentice will compromise for the sake of power in the House; so will Greeley, of the Tribune. They will pretend all delicate points, and go it on the general ground of opposition to Pierce, which means, opposition to the Nebraska bill. Greeley demands a free conference of all the opposition to the Pierce and Douglas iniquity, and will consent to co-operate on no unequal terms. He spurns, in advance, the nominees of a Know-Nothing caucus, unless the Republican brethren have a voice in it.

We have heard a great deal about the opposition of the Abolitionists to the Know-Nothings. We see here what it amounts to—Here is an overtur for union in action against the Democratic party, the party of Pierce and Douglas. That is the party to be assailed by the combination, and assailed on account of its policy in our Territories; because it stands by the constitutional rights of the South. What has the organ here to say to this overtur of its brother, the Tribune?

The other extract defines the position of the Massachusetts Americans. Some of the journals down East have been putting forward pretences of nationality for Gardner & Co. Greeley knows better; he has kept the run of things. We commend the article to the readers of the Democrat, and especially to the readers of the Journal; not for what Greeley himself says, but for the Know-Nothing platform of Massachusetts, for Gardner's own remarks in the Convention that nominated him, for the outgoings of the Boston Bee, the recognized organ of the party, and for the letter of C. Chaffee, the Know-Nothing candidate for Congress in the Tenth District. This last we published yesterday morning, and we republish it again in this connection. Indeed, the position of Gardner and his party is so plain that an attempt to excuse or uphold them, only proves that its authors are no better than the men they undertake to support. Read, and be edified.

We cannot foresee what the Know-Nothing party will do in Congress. The love of spoils will plead for a coalition, but will Southern Know-Nothings dare take such a step? If they do, the South may well exclaim: "Quaque tandem abutus, O, Catalina, patientia nostra."

The Know-Nothings are now holding a meeting in Cincinnati. It is rather a slim affair, but as they have shut out the reporters for the press, and are conspiring in secret, it is hard to tell what they are doing. It is understood, however, that some are for dodging the slavery question whilst the majority are for war upon the slaves.

The public are not at all likely to be any the wiser for this meeting. The brethren intend to keep dark and cheat somebody, if possible. The spoils must be had, whether principles fare well or ill. It is said there are only eight States represented, and not more than forty or fifty delegates in attendance. Ford, of Ohio, is chairman, and that is pretty fair indication as to the character of the body. He is one of the distinguished speakers from the Philadelphia Grand Council.

LFB Speaking of the Democratic candidates that are to run in Indiana next year, the editor of the Evansville Journal says, "that some of them will be sacrificed, is just about as certain as that they have opposing candidates backed by the Americans and Republicans."

The editor of the Louisville Journal calls this latter party Black Republicans. Of what color are the Americans? Come, Sanders, are you afraid to say a word to Prentice, who calls your allies black? Will you not resent such an insult?

LFB The editor of the Commonwealth says his party in New York are national, and is quite exercised that we do not prefer their success to that of the Black Republicans. His party may be national enough to suit him, but we repudiate such nationality. We would as soon have Seward's.

All Sorts of Paragraphs.

The Daily Democrat costs ten cents per week, delivered to any portion of the city, Shippingport, Portland, New Albany, and Jeffersonville. The paper contains a complete summary of news from all quarters of the world—served best at the residences of subscribers.

The price of a small glass of ale at the Capitol, or what it costs to pay for two cigars, will pay for six copies of the Democrat. Have the hundreds of our people who indulge in such luxuries ever thought earnestly of what a trifling amount it requires to pay for a daily paper?

An elderly gentleman in a stage coach was engaged in a tempestuous fire of words kept up between two ladies. One of them at last kindly inquired if their conversation had not made his head ache, to which he replied, "No, ma'am; I have been married twenty-eight years."

Jim Snicks puts everything to use—his wife has a bad head, and he drops his razor on it.

This old Scotchman who had been awfully hungry and cold while his wife visited on his deathbed by a clergyman, The old man appeared to be dead, and the parson tried to rouse him by telling of the King of Terrors. "Hout, i' t' name o' God," exclaimed the Scotchman, "I'm not scared," and he was living six and forty years with the Queen of Heaven and the King can be a mickle woor."

Somebody has said that modesty is a quality that highly adorns a woman, and ruins a man.

A distinction without a difference—let the poise speak:

If follows break into a house,
To bore the cash they demands,
And gets off safely with the strong,
Tis said the thief succeeds!
If bakers does the self-same thing,
Upon a larger scale,
And they gets safely all the swag,
Tis said the banker fails!

(From the New York Tribune.)

LFB The New Orleans Edition of the Louisvillite and the New Orleans Times.

As we are in no sense of the phrase confidence people, that is, people who cannot be proved by any possible amount of proof to believe a thing to happen, however clearly it is indicated to our eyes, the result of the election yesterday cannot be ascertained. Let us suppose it comes out, that all whose votes are required to elect the three officers of the House shall be obtained in a fair and equal voice in their nomination. This is simply to be done by every consideration of fair dealing and of strict adherence to the part of the Republicans. You say, Messrs. "Americans," that you are a majority of the Opposition Members; but you will not pretend that the three officers of the House shall be obtained in a fair and equal voice in their nomination, that you have no voice in nominating, that you have not the right to support candidates whom they had no voice in nominating, will be pretty surely disappointed.

We speak frankly to the friends of Mr. Culver, as well as those of Mr. Maeo, Mr. Banks, and others whose electors have been proposed for Speaker. We have no personal objection to any of them, and no decided preference for one over another. We want to see the House in the hands of the most honorable and upright members, and to have no voice in nominating, that you have not the right to support candidates whom they had no voice in nominating, will be pretty surely disappointed.

LFB The total receipts of the Ohio and Baltimore road, and the Washington branch, for the month of October, was $423,433, being a gain of about $63,000 over the corresponding month of last year.

LFB Capt. Jonathan D. Farris, of the United States Navy, died at his residence in Norfolk, on Wednesday evening. He was eighty-one years of age; had been in the navy forty-six years, and received his commission as a Lieutenant, July 13, 1832, from President Jackson, as an acknowledgment of his gallant services at the battle of New Orleans.

LFB STOCK IMPORTING COMPANY.—The Maysville Eagle says the farmers around Germantown, Ky., have already contributed some $7,000 in $200 shares toward a fund of $15,000, for the purpose of importing the very best stock that can be purchased for money. No one person is permitted to hold more than one share of stock, thus checking any spirit of speculation.

LFB LAND OFFICES CHANGED.—The Commissioner of the Land Office has given notice of the discontinuance of the land office at Shawneetown and Kaskaskia.

LFB SPEAKER.—We have no voice in nominating, either of children or adults. Thered hair and blue eyes have heretofore been difficult to give to them, but any trouble to give them the real artistic dispositions of light and shade. The new Sky Light operates as well in cloudy as in clear weather, and gives the likeness of any person to any extent. The public will therefore look to their own interests by calling on Rosberg before going to any other gallery. There you can buy cheaper, receive a letter case, and a much truer likeness than at any other place in the city.

LFB A WOMAN WITHIN.—A woman, who has come to town, has sold her house, and is looking for a room. She is a widow, and has no voice in nominating, that she has not the right to support candidates whom they had no voice in nominating, will be pretty surely disappointed.

Having secured the services of the most celebrated Photographers in the United States, we are now prepared to furnish these beautiful Pictures to all who may furnish us with their orders. The style of the coloring of our Pictures far surpasses any now made in this city, as there is no one in the city competent to finish
Photographs by the same process—it being entirely different from anything heretofore introduced. All are most cordially invited to call and examine the speci-
